Dear Shareholders,

On May 11, 2012, the Shareholders’ Meeting was attended by around 3,500 participants, demonstrating the importance of this occasion for dialogue between shareholders and their Company. This significant event, which is the subject of this special issue, provides an opportunity to look back at the previous year and the outlook for the future.

The geopolitical upheavals of the year again reminded us that meeting the demand for energy in the coming years is a major challenge. We strive to meet this challenge and our strategy reflects this resolve.

In order to meet growing demand, innovation and investment are necessary since access to resources is becoming more difficult. We recently acquired a number of different interests: Gladstone, a liquefied natural gas project in Australia, Novatek in Russia, and Lake Albert in Uganda. Our investments increased and totaled 16 billion euros in 2011.

The legitimacy of our strategy is validated by the results presented during the meeting, with adjusted net income in euros up 11% over 2010. The year 2011 was marked by higher hydrocarbon prices, which were partially offset by a difficult environment for refining and petrochemicals.

The results of our strategy can also be found in our three major discoveries in 2011 (in Azerbaijan, Bolivia and French Guyana) and the latest major projects to come on stream, like Pazflor in Angola, Usan in Nigeria, Islay in the North Sea and Bongkot South in Thailand.

Total is implementing its strategy as a responsible industrial operator whose actions focus on sustainability. This is predicated upon such things as operational excellence. But zero risk does not exist, as we were reminded by the gas leak on March 25, 2012 on our Elgin platform in the North Sea. Our teams and the necessary resources were mobilized in cooperation with the authorities to manage this incident optimally while prioritizing transparency and communication. The leak was plugged on May 15, 2012 in an operation that involved injecting mud into the well. We must now determine the causes of the accident through the investigations in progress, and take into account any lessons learned.

Being responsible also means improving energy efficiency and promoting access to energy. The "Total ecosolutions" label and the "Total Access" service stations, for example, are part of that effort. At the same time, we must diversify the energy mix. For example, we are a world leader in liquefied natural gas and are developing new energy sources like solar and biomass.

Being responsible also means improving our governance, and the Board of Directors remains focused on this effort. The Nominating and Governance Committee and the Compensation Committee have been expanded and we also created a Strategy Committee.

Finally, as a responsible group, Total is working to create value and share that value with its various stakeholders, as you will (re-)discover in this issue.
Elgin: leak plugged

During a well operation, a gas leak occurred on March 25, 2012 on the Elgin field in the UK North Sea, approximately 240 km east of Aberdeen, Scotland. All necessary measures were taken to manage the situation appropriately and minimize the impact.

During the Shareholders' Meeting, Christophe de Margerie discussed this incident, noting "our first concern was to evacuate the 238 employees working on the site" because "human safety has been and will always be our priority." Teams of experts were then mobilized to stop the leak. One of the solutions planned, which involved injecting mud into the well in question, began on May 15, 2012, and the leak was stopped 12 hours later. Since then, several inspections conducted at the site have confirmed that the leak has been completely plugged. Following the success of this operation, the next phase will be to restart a drilling rig that will install cement plugs in the well.

Your shareholders' space

During the Shareholders' Meeting on May 11, the "Total in France in 2011" dialogue space focused on solidarity. Shareholders were able to learn about two Total entities that work for solidarity: Total Développement Régional (TDR) and the Total Enterprise Foundation.

TDR is dedicated to the economic development of the regions that host to Total's operations in France and around the world. Its objective is to promote job creation through various means: financial contributions for the creation, purchase and development of businesses, technological support or aid for innovative projects and international assistance for small and medium-size enterprises (SMEs). In the past 10 years, TDR has provided financial support to 1,000 French SMEs, assisted with 15,000 jobs and invested 60 million euros.

The Foundation, for its part, is celebrating its 20th anniversary this year. Initially dedicated exclusively to the environment, today it has 4 areas of focus: the environment as always, more specifically marine biodiversity, along with health, culture and solidarity, with a focus on providing employment opportunities for youth. For example, the Foundation supports the non-profit association program "Job in the city," which assists 250 youth with work strategies and opportunities. It has achieved resounding success with the program: 84% of these youth find a way to obtain training or a job. The association responsible for this program has received over 11,000 euros thanks to the generosity of shareholders who have donated their attendance fees, an amount matched and doubled by Total.

In addition to these organizations, Total is committed to other support programs, such as Restos du Coeur which served 190,000 meals in 2011 thanks to the customers at our service stations.
What was the dividend policy for 2011?
The Shareholders’ Meeting of May 11, 2012 approved payment of a dividend of 2.28 euros per share for 2011, which is unchanged from last year. Total’s payout ratio in 2011, calculated on the basis of adjustment net income, is therefore 45%. Taking into account the three interim quarterly dividends of 0.57 euro per share for 2011, the final dividend is 0.57 euro per share. It was paid in cash on June 21, 2012.

What about the 2012 dividend?
On April 26, 2012, the Board of Directors decided to set the amount of the first 2012 interim quarterly dividend at 0.57 euro per share. The ex-dividend date for this interim dividend, in an amount identical to the previous quarter, will be September 24, 2012.
The ex-dividend dates for the following interim dividends and the final dividend for 2012 will be: December 17, 2012, March 18, 2013 and June 24, 2013.

The appointments of Ms. Anne Lauvergeon and Messrs Christophe de Margerie, Patrick Artus, Bertrand Collomb and Mr. Michel Pébereau as members of the Board of Directors, were renewed each for an additional three-year term.

The Board applies the very best practices in terms of its governance, and the composition of the Board illustrates this point. Five of the fifteen members of the Board of Directors are women, 27% of the Board is from outside of France and 80% are independent directors.

The Board’s work
A Board engaged in evaluating major projects and managing risk

At the Shareholders’ Meeting, Christophe de Margerie presented the main work of the Board of Directors and its Committees. He summarized the missions of the Board: its role is first and foremost to define strategic directions and approve major capital expenditures. The Board is also responsible for approving the accounts, following an internal audit, and it is more involved than ever in risk analysis. The risks are financial, geopolitical, industrial and environmental. For example, the Board discussed and deliberated on the situations in Syria and Libya, and on the Elgin incident. Finally, at the level of governance itself, the missions of the Board include, among other duties, developing the succession plans for corporate offices, drawing up resolutions to be submitted to the Shareholders’ Meeting and deciding on compensation packages for executive officers.

Christophe de Margerie also provided and detailed a few examples of the issues discussed at Board meetings, such as the launch of the Gladstone project in Australia, the sale of Cepsa in Spain, or quarterly dividend payments. The Board, in particular through its Nominating and Governance Committee, pays close attention to its membership (see below) to ensure its members are independent and diverse. Christophe de Margerie also stressed the active involvement of the directors, who had an attendance rate of 92% in 2011, compared to 91% in 2010. He concluded by describing how the Board is evaluated at three levels:

- by the Nominating and Governance Committee;
- annually by the Board itself;
- every three years by an outside firm.
